Pathway Designs & Construction brings Universal Design to Seattle Green Home Tours

Better Homes for Your Health & the Planet

Seattle, WA, Friday December 2, 2022 - Pathway Design and Construction has partnered up with Seattle Green Home Tours, who is showing environmentally sustainable homes across the Puget Sound on Sunday, January 15, 2023. Attendees will get to see firsthand one of Pathway's green home renovations using innovative technology geared towards saving our planet, lowering monthly expenses, and creating a healthy environment within the home.

The featured home Pathway Design and Construction is making available is located in the highly sought-after Greenwood neighborhood. This groundbreaking home includes wool insulation that not only captures excess humidity, but also absorbs harmful volatile organic compounds (VOCs) that compromise indoor air quality and a state-of-the-art filtration system. The home also has efficient radiant floors that will keep you warm through Seattle's chilly winters. Along with several other green building materials, this home's kitchen and bath have a Universal Design, meaning the home is accessible to all people, regardless of age, disability or other factors.

The Seattle Green Home Tour is an opportunity for a meet and greet with the designers, architects, and contractors. Attendees will be able to ask questions and learn about what makes a home environmentally sustainable.

"We have worked with Seattle Green Home Tours for five years now," says Paul Kocharhook, owner of Pathway Designs and Construction. "We are proud to be a part of their event once again this year."
